OPERA

English 7.54 and Russian 7.23 Version

Opera started out as a research project in Norway's telecom company, Telenor, in 1994, and branched out into an independent development company named Opera Software ASA in 1995.

Opera Software develops the Opera Web browser, a high-quality, multi-platform product for a wide range of platforms, operating systems and embedded Internet

If you check this box, Opera will also install Java, which allows you to run Java applets on Web pages. You don't need this if you already have a recent version of Sun Java (or Opera with Java) installed.

MOZILLA

English 1.7.3 and Russian 1.7.3 Version

The primary mission of mozilla.org is to coordinate and integrate the work of others. Here are all of the ongoing projects

When Netscape released its original browser codebase as open source on March 31, 1998, the expectation, product plans, checkin rights, and indeed, code structure, all militated toward a continuation of the big suite of applications (browser, mail, editor) first heavily promoted as "Communicator" in the Netscape 4 days.

This "swiss army knife" approach continued when we reset Mozilla around Gecko, XPFE, and scriptable XPCOM interfaces in late 1998.

Along the way, of course, Mozilla has received very generous support from Netscape, mainly in the form of paid contributors and infrastructure.

The result has been a rich and complex application suite with a large set of back-end modules for the user-interface front ends
